ALUMNI PROFILE:
Maureen Golden ’04, G’14

You may have read about Maureen Golden ’04 in the most recent edition of The View, but what you might not know is the support of her employer has made all the difference in her life.

Getting involved is nothing new for Maureen; she has always felt that being of service to others was a calling for her. Combining her love of Champlain College with her passion and determination is a winning combination. Maureen credits her ability to be so involved to her employer, Peoples Trust Company. Not only do they allow Maureen the time she needs to stay involved, but Peoples Trust has even financially contributed to her continuing her education. It is interesting to note, the President of Peoples Trust is himself an Alum, Thomas J. Gallagher G’03.

Maureen joined Peoples Trust Company in November of 2011. Throughout her 25 years in the banking and finance industry Maureen has helped countless Vermont business owners find solutions by listening and helping them identify need, not unlike what she does at Champlain in her role on the Alumni Advisory Board. Maureen serves as a voice for her fellow alumni brothers and sisters.

Maureen is definitely one of Champlain’s biggest fans and never misses an opportunity to help out her beloved alma mater. Whether she is volunteering to work the welcome table at Alumni Weekend, sitting on a panel for women in business, or serving on the Alumni Advisory Council, Maureen welcomes opportunities to get involved and thanks to Peoples Trust--she can.

Maureen grew up in St. Albans Vermont and currently resides in Milton. When she is not working at Peoples Trust or volunteering at Champlain, she teaches at Community College of Vermont, enjoys mountain biking, alpine skiing, writing, and spending as much time as possible with her husband Mike, family and friends. Stay with us as we follow Maureen and Peoples Trust and their unique connection to Champlain College.
