Seeking new Eco-Reps for Spring 2019

The Champlain College Eco-Reps Program trains student leaders who model and promote environmentally responsible and socially-just behaviors in the residence halls by educating their peers. This is a paid position (you do not have to be work study eligible), but you must live in a Champlain College residence hall to be an Eco-Rep. Go to our website for more information regarding the position and the application. Applications are due Monday, December 3rd.

Champlain Team Goes to Project Green Challenge Finals

Hansel Carter IV '20 (Filmmaking) recently represented Champlain College at the PGC Finals. See the full story here.

Since its inception 8 years ago, PGC has engaged more than 40,000 participants, from all 50 states, 102 countries, and more than 4,000 campuses. Indirectly this initiative has reached 24.2 million humans all over our planet.

Team Champlain Eco Queens (Hansel Carter IV, Margaret Woodman, Zoe Caron) Champlain College, Burlington, VT

"After taking this challenge, I learned just how much I can do to change the issues I encounter in my community. Problems that may seem impossible to solve such as getting a business to stop using plastic straws can be as simple as having a conversation with them about their effect on the environment, cost, and logical issues that may arise with change. I've am also more connected to social issues not just in my community but around the world. I find myself more and more bringing topics into daily conversation whether its something as small as telling a friend a styrofoam cup is bad for the environment or bringing up examples of water scarcity and poverty in India in my Global Condition class when relative to the conversation. I learned I can be more involved and active in my community and that the small steps I take towards achieving goals like these go a long way!"
